EVE University members can get full reimbursement for most of these skills, among many others, through the University skillbook program. Capacitor Management - 5% bonus to capacitor capacity per skill level. Capacitor Systems Operation - 5% reduction in capacitor recharge time per skill level.

Is it necessary to be cap-stable in PvE & PvP?

Although it is a good thing to be cap-stable, it is not a requirement in every situation. In some PvE and PvP combat situations, you will rarely need everything running at the same time, while in others stability is important. You must consider a fit's likely use and context.

Passive regen fits don't come with cap batteries, and thus they do not have a corresponding capacitor warfare resistance %. This is huge against neuts. A neutered out passive ship will have to slow-boat to the gate without a prop - will fill the bottom half of shields faster than the top half - and thus you'll find yourself either waiting on a ...

I was in Rookie Chat when an argument broke out between two players over the benefits (if any) of ensuring a stable cap. Even though I joined EVE Online yesterday I like to think I learned something while doing the career agent missions, so my position on capacitor sustainment depends on whether it is more important to hang in a firefight longer or to quickly ...

The question originally came to me as I was theory crafting a C5 Anom Moros and was trying to work out the benefits from cap boosting through the usual mods to counter heavy ...

I've been running a few C3 sites in a Typhoon with 2 cap batteries fitted and I've never run dry on cap. I've never gone below 30% cap. edit I'll have to try without them and ...

Capacitor warfare is the attack strategy of using equipment to drain a target ship's capacitor, its available energy for powered modules.A ship without sufficient capacitor energy can lose the ability to fire certain weapons, ...

I've tried out dual cap batteries on many ships, and it's a funny thing, some ships have better recharge and others are better off with single and recharger. The defense from dual batteries is nice too. But this fit was for max Alpha skills, a well skilled Omega can actually remove the recharger and fit a Webber or another tracking computer ...

Capacitor batteries are good for when you think you're going to get neutered out but need to be able to burst your capacitor level up to keep modules running. In short, if you're making a PvE cap stable ship the cap recharge time mods are probably what you're looking for, if you're looking for a pvp ship the cap batteries are what you need.
