

Who used MacGregor Golf Clubs?

Several notable golfers had their loopers carry MacGregor clubs for them, including Tommy Armour, Byron Nelson, Jimmy Demaret, and Ben Hogan. MacGregor's innovations, like the MT irons and Eye-O-Matic woods, featured technology still used in clubs today.

When was MacGregor the preferred golf club brand?

From 1930 to 1960, MacGregor was the preferred club for the greatest golfers, including Tommy Armour, Byron Nelson, Jimmy Demaret, and Ben Hogan. During this time, MacGregor produced iconic clubs like the MT irons and Eye-O-Matic woods, which featured advanced technology still used in clubs today.

Are MacGregor Golf Clubs underrated?

In 2006, MacGregor launched the MACTEC Forged M685. Providing excellent workability and improved ball speed, these clubs were certainly underrated. Rounding out the decade, the manufacturer launched five new versions of the successful MT range: MT, MT OS, MT Mid, MT Pro-M, and MT Pro-C.

Who bought MacGregor Golf Club after MacGregor's savior?

Even though MacGregor seemed to be every golfer's answer, they were sold again to Wickes Corporation. This purchase was mostly made because the owners and operators of Wickes were big time golf fans.

Did Jack Nicklaus use MacGregor Golf Clubs?

FACT: From 1937 through 1959, more touring pros used MacGregor clubs and balls than all other golf equipment brands combined. Following some tumultuous years under new ownership, MacGregor steadied the ship enough to sign world-number-one Jack Nicklaus on a 5-year deal in 1960. That same year, MacGregor developed the FC4000 Tommy Armour SS1 irons.

Is MacGregor iron softer than 1020 carbon steel?

MacGregor claims to be 1020 carbon steel, while most irons are made from 1025 carbon steel, which might make MacGregor softer. However, the iron's geometry can have a more significant effect on the soft feel than the material being 1020 or not.
