What is a strophic aria in opera?

A strophic aria in opera is a form where the music follows a AAA pattern, often with a repeating musical bass over which the vocal part moves more freely. This form was less common in opera, which developed in the 1600s, so you'll hear very few strophic arias in opera houses today. An example is 'Dal mio permesso' from Monteverdi's 'Orfeo', featuring strophic variations over a repeating bass.
